Know Before You Submit

What materials do I need to have to submit?

- You must submit a presentation deck in PowerPoint, PDF, or annotated outline in Word to be considered for a session, and any other supporting materials like videos, research findings, or polling questions.
- All speaker details including name, title, phone, email, biography, and headshot of each speaker.
- Sponsors submissions need to also provide Event POC contact and Contract Signatory contact information.

Are outlines acceptable?

- FS-ISAC can accept an annotated outline for a traditional session. That said, more complete submissions have a greater likelihood of acceptance.

Do the materials have to be finalized?

- A complete deck is preferred, a draft is acceptable, and an annotated outline is needed at the minimum. If accepted, you can update your materials.

What are other general recommendations to help my acceptance chances?

- Overcommunicate and provide more information like speaker notes to help the Content Committee better understand your presentation and make more informed decisions about the session content.
- Keep your title sessions short with a wow factor. (60 characters max)
- See more specific recommendations in the “What Makes a Strong Presentation Submission” section below.

By submitting, member and sponsor speaker company confirm and agree:

- Speakers will fully engage in the preparation process, meeting deadlines and participating in any training or pre-Summit prep calls, and will travel to the event.
- Presentation decks and materials are by default TLP AMBER, available to all registered attendees (no media or press is allowed to attend the event).
- For sponsors: If your presentation is accepted, you agree to the applicable sponsor fee and Event Sponsor Terms and Conditions.
- The submission complies with your organization’s rules and policies for speaking at an external event.

Review and Acceptance Process

The FS-ISAC Content Committee, made up of FS-ISAC staff and members, reviews each submission thoroughly to build a cohesive agenda. The submitted presentation deck and materials will be reviewed during this process and if accepted, feedback will be provided.

What Makes a Strong Presentation Submission

- Actionable takeaways and lessons learned for attendees. Ask yourself: What is the tangible impact of your talk on attendees and their teams?
- What expert insights have you shared? Could they get this info from a simple web search or are you adding something special and informative? Remember the audience is focused on security, they don't need to be explained the basics; go deeper.
- A clear focus on attendees of a specific role with specific takeaways.
- An understanding of what proficiency level is required to easily digest your presentation.
- Engaging, inspiring, and fun delivery.
- Sponsored Platinum and Gold sessions are thought leadership driven with no sales or product mention.
- A subject matter expert as a speaker. No speakers with product or sales roles are permitted for Platinum and Gold sessions.
- Sponsored Silver Solution Showcases are demos and can include sales and product mentions.
- For Solutions Providers and Sector Advisors/Affiliates, co-presenting with a member firm for thought leadership is highly encouraged.
